October Has Arrived

While Labor Day traditionally marks the unofficial end of summer, it feels like we aren't truly given permission to embrace fall until October arrives. Now that it is here, Westerly Library and Wilcox Park is ready to celebrate! The time has come for maple and pumpkin treats, cozy mystery books, pumpkin decor, and – of course – our wildly popular Fall Fest and Pumpkin Stroll!

Our first Pumpkin Stroll took place in 2022, and it became immediately clear that it would be an annual event. At the time, it focused primarily on the pumpkin decorating contest; since then, it has evolved into a delightful (and delicious) celebration of fall for all ages.

During the event, attendees are encouraged to view and vote on pumpkins that were decorated ahead of time by the public. As they wander through the park, they can engage in various fall-themed activities, enjoy apple cider and donuts, and take advantage of photo ops against the gorgeous autumnal backdrop of Wilcox Park. It's also a great opportunity to test-drive your Halloween costumes, which are highly encouraged. This year's event will even include a costume parade open to humans and pets alike! It all takes place from 4-6pm on October 17th. Registration opens for the contest, and pumpkins will be available for pickup, beginning October 10th. The event is open to all ages and free to the public, thanks to a generous donation by Benjamin Delaney.

A part of me is still a bit sad to see summer come to an end, but with many fantastic events like this on the horizon (as well as a tall stack of books to cozy up with at home), it's hard to be too upset. Hopefully, you can all get into the spirit of the season with us at Westerly Library & Wilcox Park!

banned books week

october 4-10

Banned Books Week was launched in 1982 by American Library Association activist Judith Krug and the Banned Books Week Coalition in response to a sudden surge of book challenges and removals in schools, libraries, and bookstores.

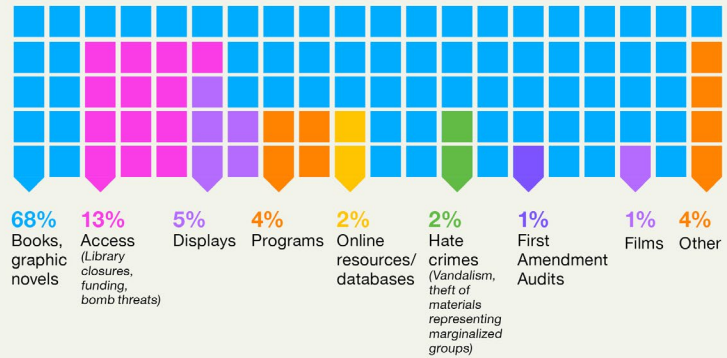

This year's message, "Let Books Be. Protect the Freedom to Read." emphasizes that books should be left on shelves for readers to discover, pushing back against a rising tide of localized censorship and organized challenges directed at libraries and classrooms.

Today, the event highlights ongoing nationwide attempts to restrict access to diverse perspectives, particularly stories addressing LGBTQIA+ themes and characters of color.

celebrating Mary Goodman

In 2001, the Memorial and Library Association established the Gold Leaf Award to honor people who have supported the Park and the Library to an outstanding degree over the years. This year, we are honored to recognize an individual whose unwavering support, dedication, and love for the library and park have made a lasting impact on the Association: Mary Mitchell Goodman.

Mary's connection to the library began in 1955, when she spent countless hours in the original Children's Room, now our Media Room. Remarkably, 70 years later, she can still be found in the Children's Department as a volunteer. These days, she is often crawling around on the floor while pulling holds or restocking books. Getting books on those lower shelves can be tough on the back!

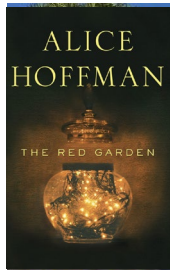

Mary Goodman served on the Board of Trustees for three full terms from 2012 to 2021. She co-founded and co-chairs the Ocean Community Collaborative, which is a group of local nonprofit leaders that meet once a month to share ideas, come up with solutions, and build partnerships that help us all better serve our shared community. Collaborative members include representatives from several organizations with which Mary is actively involved. Among them are Weekapaug Green (where Mary serves as a steward), and Literacy Volunteers of Washington County (where she serves on the Advisory Council).

For Mary, who taught at Providence Country Day School for over 20 years, education is the driving force behind her nonprofit work. This award honors her commitment to ensuring access to education for all and her significant contributions towards that goal.
